

In regards to cell phone use in flight. I am a flight attendant for Southwest Airlines. Allowing passengers to use their cell phones in flight would not only be disruptive to other passengers in a confined area, it would also pose the problem of in flight safety. It is hard enough to get passengers attention for safety procedures, if they are allowed to use their cell phones it would almost guarantee no body paying attention to direction. Most flights are under 2 hours, and anyone can refrain from using their cell phone for that length of time.
